

There are many other things you could be doing other than campaigning. Why are you taking time to volunteer on the trail for Hillary?

Before you were a professional actor, you taught English in Japan. How did living and working in another culture help you understand America's place in the world?

What does patriotism mean to you?

Josh Gad made a great statement last night about a war on decency that's going on in America. Because we go high, let's not mention the name who must not be named, but I ask what decency means to you and why it is important to you personally that we build a decent society?

You have worked with many people in your career, but working with Shonda Rhimes, you worked with a trailblazer, a strong woman who reinvented what women could do in television. How did collaborating with her change your ideas about what you could do with your own career?

Personally, I grew up in a town of 123 people and today live in LA. Hillary Clinton has always inspired me because she came from limited means to become one of the most successful people in the world, showing us that you can be anything you want with hard work and determination. You grew up in Tucson, worked at Dairy Queen and now are one of the world's most recognized individuals. How does a modest beginning help shape the way you see the world, and how will that help Hillary be a better president?

For most of American history, women didn't have the right to vote. What would it mean for a qualified champion of women like Hillary Clinton to make history as the first female president?

Why do we need Hillary Clinton to lead us now, at this point in our history?

What are the issues she champions that speak to you?

Is there anything you'd like to add?
